Leap Year Luncheon TONY DUQUETTE JEWELS

with Hutton Wilkinson

Wednesday, February 29, 2010

11:30am Reception | 12:00pm Lite Luncheon | 1:00pm Presentation

Hutton Wilkinson, not wanting to be accused of conjuring overtones of luxury, decadence, artificiality, living in the past and lack of harmony with Mother Earth, will share with us his pursuit of his love of design from a time before the advent of the 21st century, the jewelry designing process, his inspirations and the nature of the precious materials he works with and give us a peek of artfully shot photos of his elaborate designs.

Hutton Wilkinson is now the owner, creative director and president of Tony Duquette after a 25-year partnership with Tony Duquette that included designing custom interiors for the Rockefellers, a palace complex in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia for Prince Tarfa Bin Abdul Aziz, and executive offices for Twentieth Century Fox. Wilkinson and Duquette also launched a fine jewelry collection in 1998 at Bergdorf Goodman.
